Nothing now remains but to change the name of Vermont to Champlain.

"Raid at St. Albans"—merely for contraband liquor this time and no Bennett H. Youngs involved.

It is not one of the Seven Wonders but still a matter of considerable surprise that work has actually been started on Montpelier's city hall.

With two murder trials on in Bennington county and two trials for assault with intent to kill in Lamoille county, the sensational court calendar of Vermont is full enough.

A granite block work $200,000 has been quarried in Barre. Many men can remember when the whole hill could have been bought for less than that sum.—St. Albans Messenger.

Bless you, yes; you might have just whistled and carried off a few hundred acres.

Here is the generally sedate and sober Vergennes Enterprise suggesting that a few lynching bees may be "necessary" to keep down crimes of murder in Vermont. Does the contemporary really mean it? Or was it a careless utterance? We trust it was the latter and not to be taken as the serious sentiment of the editor.

The Bennington Banner suggests that Barber stock is going up—that is, stock of O. M. Barber of Bennington for governor of Vermont. In fact, the contemporary thinks that if Mr. Barber would allow the use of his name he would become the leading candidate at once. This is undoubtedly put out as a feeler in behalf of the Bennington man.

The personal guard of Mary Baker Eddy would make a better argument against the contention that the mother of Christian Science is dead if they would be more frank and open. For instance, at a distance of fifty feet and for the period of ten seconds, reporters were privileged yesterday to gaze upon a woman who was presented as Mrs. Eddy.

The extent to which tuberculosis has gained a stronghold in Ireland is indicated by the statement that the annual death list there averages 12,000, while the disease at the present time has its clutches on 120,000 people. The cause for this large number of deaths and prevalence of the disease is explained by the countess of Aberdeen as restricted ventilation of the house which, in turn, is caused by a wet climate, a low dietary and scanty fuel. In order to protect themselves from the climate the Irish shut themselves into their houses and suffer the penalties of poor ventilation, or no ventilation at all. The people must be taught that they stand a better chance for life partially exposed to the inclemency of the weather than when warm and dry within a sealed building. There should be a ready response to the appeals of the countess of

A BURGLAR-SHOOTER EXONERATED.

No indictment was brought against the young man who, during the height of a burglar hunt in Hyde Park recently, shot and killed an unknown man, in the act of burglarizing a store, thereby bearing out the contention of most people who have followed the case, that there was no legal means for holding him for manslaughter. Lamentable as the case was, the situation as told in the newspapers justified the severe actions which the posse pursued; the burglar caught in the act of rifling the store and, when surrounded, attempting to break through the cordon, at the same time making a move with his hand as if for the purpose of drawing a weapon; then as the burglar ran toward one member of the posse the latter promptly took aim and fired, bringing the fleeing man down, wounded mortally. The same course would have been pursued by almost any other person who found himself in the same predicament; and we look upon the arrest of the shooter as purely perfunctory and done more to conform to legal usages rather than with any idea of holding him legally responsible for the act. Had the shooting taken place in a western mining camp, there would not have been even the formality of an inquest and the burglar would have been buried forthwith. But in a commonwealth where legal forms are a sort of fetish, the ordinary course to follow was to hold an inquest, arraign the shooter and then wait for the grand jury to absolve him from legal responsibility. This has been done and the law has been satisfied and so the matter will drop.

CURRENT COMMENT

What It Ought to Be.

A block of granite valued at $200,000 was broken out this week. That item sounds as though it ought to be under a New Hampshire heading, but it comes from Barre, Vt.—Concord, N. H. Monitor.

Why We Love Burlington.

If Vermont is to erect a monument to Champlain let it be placed on Burlington's lake front park, which, like Zion of old, is "beautiful for situation." All Vermont loves Burlington, not so much for what she has done, for that isn't much, but for what it is hoped she will do to the end of getting a lake water way that all Vermont as well as herself, may profit thereby.—White River Junction Landmark.

Guaranty of Bank Deposits.

The cause is growing. Oklahoma, Nebraska and Texas now have compulsory systems for the protection of depositors in state banks. In Texas the state bank can choose between joining the compulsory system and giving individual security upon the guaranty system. In Kansas and South Dakota voluntary systems have been adopted, while in Colorado, Arkansas and Indiana the guaranty bill passed one branch of the legislature. Attorney General Wickersham has delivered an opinion to the effect that national banks are at liberty to insure their depositors, and insurance companies are already being organized for that purpose. The fight made last year has had its influence, and in spite of Republican opposition to the plan, the protection of depositors is coming. The Republicans leaders have taken the side of the big financiers, but even the big financiers will in the end be compelled to yield to the just demand of the depositors for security. And so another Democratic doctrine is being vindicated. The Democratic party has something to be proud of when it can, even in defeat, control public sentiment and force its ideas upon a reluctant opposition.—The Commonwealth.

SERVICE

It is our endeavor to do the right thing, at the right time, in the right way. To eliminate errors, to be prompt, careful, courteous; to maintain always an ample margin of safety; to safeguard the interests of our depositors in every way; to be satisfied with nothing short of the best banking service.

Believing that we can give you a high quality of banking service, we solicit your account.

"Recovered Her Wind."

A news item states that at some convention up state Mrs. Annette Parmalee of Enosburg Falls devoted her remarks to ridiculing the recent Vermont legislature. Mrs. Parmalee and Miss Willis were Clarence Ferguson's right and left bowers at Montpelier last fall in his labors for county option and to compel the public schools to teach the evils of drink and the beauties of prohibition. We are glad to see that Mrs. Parmalee has recovered her wind, as she will have another chance in 1910.—Bennington Banner.

Bradford's Fourth of July.

It is generally understood that Bradford is to have a Fourth of July this year marked in other ways than by the "red four" on the calendar. As far as we are concerned this is the first time in a number of years that any effort has been made to make the day a holiday. A few chairmen of committees are not going to be able to make this thing a success. Of course, they will do most of the work and get most of the kudos, but that in itself won't make the day a success. Every man, woman and child will have to get along. In the first place, funds are needed. The business men have done their part, for the most part. Now let the rest of us take hold. Let a hundred people give a dollar a piece, let another hundred give fifty cents a piece, and with the fund already raised, we will have money enough to provide for a good celebration. Another thing let us begin to make plans to take part in the events. Let us plan to do something toward the general fun of the day. Some are needed in the sports, some are needed in the horrors, we can all help by decorating our homes with flags and bunting. All we need is a little enthusiasm to show how easy it is done. We have had a good nap, now it's time that we wake up and get busy.—Bradford Opinion.

The Care of Milk.

The purity and quality of milk; always an important factor, should impress itself upon us more and more as the heated term approaches and the dangers of contamination increase.

It is well pointed out in this connection that the milk producers are by no means the only people to blame for troubles now and then traced to a milk supply as their source. The consumer has a duty of his own to perform, which, too often, is neglected from ignorance or carelessness on both sides.

The following rules, suggested for the care of milk in the home, are simple and sensible; if generally followed would greatly reduce, we venture to say, the amount of fault finding which the average milkman has to take as a part of his daily round.

1. Take in milk and cream as soon as possible after being left at your door and place in the refrigerator.
2. Keep milk and cream cold until ready for use. The bottom of the refrigerator is colder than the top container.
3. If ice cannot be had, wrap the bottle in a wet cloth and stand it in a dish of water by an open window, out of the sun; evaporation of the water will cool the milk.
4. Keep milk or cream covered until wanted, and in the bottle in which it is delivered; in open bowls or pails where they will absorb odors from food and collect flies and dust.
5. Pour from this bottle only what milk or cream is needed for immediate use.
6. Milk or cream that has become warm should never be poured back into the bottle of cold milk.
7. Utensils used for milk should be rinsed with cold water and then with boiling water, thoroughly drained and allowed to become cold before being filled with milk.
8. Wash and return all milk or cream bottles daily.
9. Have a separate quart of milk for the baby; what he does not use, others may have.—Concord Monitor.

MONTPELIER

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gutchell and daughter, Catherine, went yesterday to Burlington to open their cottage at Starr Farm Beach.

Mrs. Ruth King, who has been visiting Mrs. E. L. Pitkin, her sister, went yesterday to New York to fill a summer theatre engagement.

James P. Simmons closed his labors at the Montpelier house yesterday and went to Waterbury, where he is to be steward of the Waterbury Inn.

The drill team from the local camp of Modern Woodmen has voted not to attend in a body the annual log rolling to be held this month in Rutland.

The deaf and dumb daughter of John Lemay of Northfield street was taken yesterday to the state hospital for the insane at Waterbury for treatment.

The engagement is announced of Dr. Whitman G. Ferrin of Mahoney City, Pa., formerly of Montpelier to Miss Katherine Louise Henyl of that city.

The public service commission will give a hearing at the State House tomorrow on the petition of the Montpelier & Wells River railroad for exemption from abolishing any grade crossings this year.

Work was commenced in earnest yesterday on the excavation for the foundation for a new city hall. Contractor Jackson had 30 men at work with pick and shovel and the number will be increased. Mr. Jackson has purchased an undivided half of a brick yard in Waterbury owned by E. F. Atherton and will manufacture the brick to be used in the construction of the city hall.

Governor Proctor had a rocky time Saturday evening getting from Burlington to Montpelier in his automobile. He left Burlington at 5:30, but did not reach here until eleven o'clock owing to bad roads and defective lights on his machine. He had with him President J. M. Thomas of Middlebury and Editor Arthur F. Stone of St. Johnsbury. It was the intention of the governor to go through from Burlington to St. Johnsbury Saturday evening, but the party remained at the Pavilion over night and left for St. Johnsbury at six o'clock Sunday morning, as President Thomas had an engagement to preach in that village at 10:30.
